THURSDAY ...... APRIL 17, 1890.

The Neagle Case. A United States marshal in California last year killed Judge Terra in a railway station in that State to prevent him from killing Mr. Justice Fillds, of the United States Supreme Court. The name of this

United States marshal is NEAGLE, and the NEAGLE case which was decided last Mon-day by the United States Supreme Court grew out of the killing to which we have just referred. And a most remarkable case it is. It seems to be a precedent which might be followed to an alarming extent. Mr. Justice FIELD was in a restaurant at the time when TERRY slapped his face. It seems, however, that NEAGLE had had his eye upon TERRY, and had written to the Attorney.

General of the United States in regard to his movements, and had been instructed by the Attorney-General to protect Justice FIELD. He understood that the Attorney-General had instructed him to kill TERRY if necessary, and he acted upon those instructions. He shot TERRY dead in his tracks. And this despite the fact that TERRY had furnished the most conclusive evidence that he had no intention of taking Justice Fig. D's life. If he had purposed killing FIELD he would not have slapped his face. The slapping was notice to all the world that TERRY intended to let the matter rest after having itted that indignity upon Justice

Why, then, did NEAGLE kill TERRY? He did so upon the assumption that TERRY's object was to draw Justice Field into a personal difficulty, and then kill him. He assumed that FIELD would follow TERRY'S mple and become a law-breaker.

Last Monday, as we have stated, the Supreme Court of the United States decided that Marshal NEAGLE performed only an official duty when he killed TERRY under the circumstances which we have detailed, But, alas for the weakness of poor human nature, the Justices of the Court divided apon party lines. The Republican Justices agreed to decide that Marshal Neadle could not be called to account in a State court for the killing of TERRY, whereas the Democratic Justices dissented, holding that the killing of TERRY was an offence against the laws of California; or rather that it was for the California courts to decide whether NEAGLE was punishable or not for the killing of Terry. Mr. Justice Freed of course did not sit in the case. Chief-Justice Fuller and Justice Laman were the only other Democrats on the bench. They, we repeat, agreed upon the dissenting opinion.

We are not disposed to censure the Reas their consciences told them they ought to decide. We must take it for granted, too, that they considered the consequences which might follow the rendering of such a decision as theirs was in this case. If United States judge is entitled to a bodyguard under such circumstances, and his body-guard may slay anybody who slaps his jaws, is not a United States marshal or a United States letter-carrier or any other Federal official entitled to the same sort of protection? If, as the Supreme Court says, there is "a peace of the United States," surely all Federal officers must be considered as in the peace of the United States, and any attack upon them must be "against the peace and dignity of the United States." Mr. Justice Lamas, in delivering the dissenting opinion, touched this point. "We agree," said he, that "assuming the facts of the case to be as they are shown by the record, the personal protection of Judge Freid, as a private citizen, even to the death of Trans, was not only the right, but was also the duty of Neagle and of any other bystander. And we maintain that for the exercise of that right or duty he is answerable to the courts of the State of California, and to them alone." We quote Justice LAMAR further as follows:

"But we deny that Neagle had any duty imposed upon him by the laws of the United States growing out of the official character of Judge Field. In short, we think that there was nothing whatever in fact of an official character in the transaction, and therefore we think that the United States courts have in the present state of our legislation no jurisdiction whatever in the premises.

"The killing of Terry was not by authority of the United States, no matter by whom done, and the only authority relied on for vindication can be that of the State, and the slayer should be remanded to the State courts to be tried.

"We are the less reluctant to come to this conclusion because we cannot permit ourselves to doubt that if the appellee had been indicted and gone to a trial before a jury of his own country, God and his country would have given him a good deliverance."

On this point Mr. Justice Miller deliverance. further as follows:

On this point Mr. Justice Miller delivering the opinion of the Court said:
"Travelling to pertorm his duty Justice Field was as much in the dircharge of a duty imposed upon him by law as he was while sitting in court and trying causes. Justice Field, when attacked, had actually entered upon the duties of his circuit. We have no doubt that Justice Field, when attacked by Terry, was engaged in the discharge of his duties as Circuit Justice, and was entitled to all the protection under these circumstances which the law could give him."

"The Court does not suppose that any

we him."
"The Court does not suppose that any pecial act of Congress exists which in exress terms authorizes marshals or deputy arshals to act as a body-guard to the natices while on their circuits; but in its lew of the Constitution any obligation airly and properly inferable from that in-rument, or any duty of the marshal to a derived from the general scope of his aties, comes within the provisions of the beca-corpus act directing the rolesse of ersons who are in custody for an act done in pursuance of the laws of the United tates."

in pursuance of the laws of the United States."

"It would," says the opinion, "be a great reproach to the system of government of the United States, declared to be within its sphere sovereign and supreme, if there is to be found within the domain of its powers no means of protecting the judges in the discharge of their duties from the malice and hatred of those upon whom its udgment may operate unfavorably.

"If a person in the situation of Justice field could have no other guardian of his serioual safety while engaged in the commentious discharge of a disagreeable duty man the fact that if he was mardered his surderer would be subject to the laws of State, and by these laws could be punhed, the security would be very insufficient. We do not believe that the Government of the United States is thus inclinate, and that its Constitution and laws we left the high officers of the Government so definedless and unprotected."

For dual form of Government is always releging new peculiarities. The line because the Federal government's powers

To the Editor of the Dispatch :

Justice to Mr. Randall.

To the Editor of the Dispatch:

I was very sorry to see in yesterday's State a telegram from New York giving the substance of a special from Chicago to the New York Herald, which purports to come "from a responsible source," to the effect that Mr. Randall was a traitor to the party in this: That his opposition to Mr. Cleveland elected Mr. Harrison, and that he had avowed it.

Knowing that Mr. Randall was the best and bravest and most valuable friend to the South that the North has exhibited since the war, I have studied his career; and claiming on that ground some right to form an opinion, I declare that I do not believe one word of this charge; for it would have been out of character. Mr. Randall was a true man—remarkable, among many other high attributes, for his directness and fearlessness. He was incepable of treason. He may have been indignant and disgusted with Mr. Cleveland, as I and many others, lifelong Democrats, were, who nevertheless voted for him and did all that we could to have him reflected, because, bad as he was, we knew he would be very much better than Harrison or any other Republican.

No. Mr. Cleveland, in the judgment of many people, defeated himself, by turning traitor to the platform of 1884, as he began to do before he had taken his seat by writing a letter against the pledge he gave to respect the utterances of the party in behalf of gold and silver coinage and as he continued to do to the consummation of his work by wilfully forcing the platform of 1888 upon his party.

Ard this proposition I have made good once and am prepared to make good again.

Grateful.

FROM THE LATE JUDGE W. T. JOYNES, OF THE COURT OF APPEALS OF VIRGINIA. DANCEY AND During the year 1854 and 1855 I suffered very much from Dyspepsia, and During the year 1854 and 1855 I suffered very much from Dyspepsia, and was so prostrated by two attacks of acute indigestion as to be incepacitated for my business. After two trips to the Greenbrier White Sulphur, and inding my symptoms in both instances aggravated by the water, I heard, accidentally, on my way home, of the Alleghany Springs, then but little known, and got a gentleman to procure me a demijohn of that water. I commenced the use of it at home, resuming at the same time my professional labors, and in a few weeks experienced the most wonderful relief. For years I kept it then always on hand, and feit perfectly safe after any indulgence of my appetite whilst I had access to it. Since the war, finding it easier to procure the Blue Ridge Springs Water than the Alleghany, I have used that in the same way, and have found it equally as efficacious; indeed, I can discover no difference in their effects. It is a water certainly better suited to the form of indigestion with which I am afflicted than any I have ever known. The peculiar advantages of the water are that it is as efficacious when drunk at home as when drunk at the spring; that it is not injured by age or opening, and that it requires but very little to produce the effect—not more than one or two glasses a day. I feel that I cannot speak too highly of this water, and I have recommended it to hundreds who have used it with like happy results as A GENERAL MELTING OF THE ASTOCKHOLDERS OF THE RICHMOND INION PASSENGER-RAILWAY COMPANY PILL be held at 12 o'clock M. on the 12 th DAY OF LAY, 1896, at the office of the company, No. 999 tank street, in the city of Richmond, for the surpose of authorizing a conveyance of the property and franchises of this company to the city and franchises of this company and of editing upon such other business as may be completed to the company and of citing upon such other business as may be "STUDIES OF SOME GREAT WORKS OF ART," by Hos. WILLIAM T. HARRIS, LL. D., at 8:20 P. M. APRIL 1776, 220, AND STR. Open to public. No tickets of special invitation myself. Respectfully, W. T. JOYNES, myself. Respectfully,

FROM MR. ROBERT L. PULLEY, HUNTSVILLE, ALA.

It affords me much pleasure to add my testimony to the restorative effects of Blue Ridge Springs Water. I had suffered for several months during the spring and summer of 1881 from Dyspensia in its worst form. For weeks my digestion and assimilation were so poor that my physicians entertained little hope of my recovery. But after using the water of your springs for about two months. I was entirely restored, and am now in perfect health. Respectfully, ROBERT L. PULLEY.

So satisfactory is the evidence that the Waters of this spring contain medical qualities of the highest order that a company has been organized to place its merits prominently before the public, and a trial only is asked to convince the very respectful. most skeptical. For sale by all Druggists,
